NSS Volunteers present a street play about HIV/AIDS Awareness at Betaga H/S School

NSS Volunteers of GDC Santirbazar wrote and produced a play on HIV/AIDS Awareness which they presented in front of the school students of Betaga HS School. The volunteers had worked diligently for a week, rehearsing the play to deliver a powerful message to the students. The story revolved around a boy who used to be very good at studies. However, through peer pressure, he succumbs to drug use and eventually contracts HIV-AIDS.

The play addressed a pressing issue among the youth: the dangers of succumbing to drug use due to peer pressure. It depicted the tragic consequences of addiction, showcasing how it negatively impacts not only the individual but also their family and education. Through compelling performances, the students were shown the irreversible damage drugs can cause, both to their future and to their health.

The narrative also highlighted the significant risks associated with intravenous drug use, a major pathway for the transmission of HIV/AIDS. By linking drug use to the spread of the virus, the play emphasized the importance of making informed choices and resisting peer pressure.

The event was well-received by the students, and many expressed their appreciation for the awareness raised on such an important issue. It was a successful initiative that showcased the NSS volunteers' commitment to community service and the well-being of their peers.

Organized By: Department of Philosophy
Government Degree College Santirbazar

Sponsored by: Indian Council of Philosophical Research (ICPR), New Delhi

Date: 25th January 2024(Thursday)

Time: 11 am onwards

Venue: Conference Hall,

The Department of Philosophy at Government Degree College Santirbazar organized a one-day periodic lecture on 'Basic Values Embodied in Indian Culture and their Relevance to National Reconstruction' on 25th January, 2024 (Thursday) in the Conference Hall. The program commenced at 11:00 a.m. with the ceremonial lighting of the auspicious lamp. Distinguished guests included Professor Mohan Debbarma, HOD, Department of Philosophy, Tripura University, Agartala, Tripura (W); Dr. Bimal Chandra Pal, Retired Associate Professor of Department of Philosophy, Tripura University, Agartala, Tripura (W); Dr. Pranay Deb, Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Indian Council of Philosophical Research, New Delhi; Dr. Sanjoy Das, Principal-in-charge of the college; Sri Dipak Hrishi Das, Secretary, Teacher's Council and Dr. Sibkanta Das, Convener & Head of the Department of Philosophy.

Dr. Sibkanta Das, Convener and Head of the Department of Philosophy, extended gratitude to the esteemed guests, participants, and students for their attendance. Dr. Das mentioned that the primary objective of this program is to explore the foundational values inherent in Indian culture and understand how these values can play an essential role in the process of rebuilding and reconstructing the nation. Sri Dipak Hrishi Das, TC Secretary of Government Degree College Santirbazar, delivered a profound inaugural address, wherein he underscored the importance of comprehending and leveraging the intrinsic values of Indian culture for the comprehensive development of the nation.

The keynote address was delivered by Professor Mohan Debbarma, Head of the Department of Philosophy, Tripura University, Agartala, Tripura (W), a distinguished expert in the field. He offered a comprehensive overview of the theme of the seminar, emphasizing the cultural heritage of India as a reservoir of values capable of guiding the nation through periods of reconstruction. Professor Debbarma highlighted the foundational values of Indian culture through various examples, elucidating the interconnectedness of values and culture. He asserted that Indian culture manifests evidence of value development in life through training and experience. The Bhagavad Gita, considered the essence of the Vedas and Upanishads, exemplifies these enduring values, as do other scriptural texts such as the Vedas, Manusmriti, Ramayana, Kamasutra, Jataka tales, and Dhammapada.

In conclusion, Professor Debbarma noted that Indian society has evolved from the Indus civilization to today's globalized world, undergoing numerous transformations influenced by external forces and internal reform movements. However, what is particularly remarkable is its ability to assimilate and embrace diverse features while preserving its historical heritage.

Dr. Sanjoy Das, the Acting Principal of Government Degree College Santirbazar, delivered the Presidential address, wherein he articulated his perspectives on the theme "Basic Values Embodied in Indian Culture and their Relevance to National Reconstruction." Dr. Das emphasized the intrinsic connection between these foundational values and the imperative role they play in national revitalization. He underscored the necessity of integrating these values into our daily lives, highlighting their significance for personal growth, societal harmony, and national development.

The inaugural session is concluded with a vote of thanks delivered by Sri Indrajit Saha, a Post Graduate Teacher in the Department of Philosophy. Mr. Saha extended sincere gratitude to the speakers, participants, sponsors, and students for their valuable contributions that actualized the successful implementation of the program.

In the initial academic session, the first lecture was delivered by Dr. Bimal Chandra Pal, Retired Associate Professor from the Department of Philosophy, Tripura University, Agartala, Tripura (W), focusing on "The Elements of Cultural and Spiritual Values in the Ramayana."

Dr. Pal underscored the indispensability of mythology and Vedic principles as foundational elements for a profound cultural legacy. These elements serve as prerequisites for sustaining a robust spiritual foundation and functioning as a life-giving source of inspiration and guidance. Dr. Pal highlighted that the spiritual knowledge embedded in Vedic thought is transmitted through scriptural literature such as the Ramayana. Over centuries, the Ramayana has served as a teaching tool, guiding individuals on how to lead life and defining the ultimate goals of existence, thereby playing a pivotal role in shaping Indian culture and spirituality.

He emphasized that parents and teachers can utilize one of the most profound gems of Hindu Mythology, namely the Ramayana, to instill some of the most crucial moral values of life in children. Some important moral values of Life which are taught by Ramayana are like keep promise, reverence for parents and older people, identify what is good and what is evil, sibling bonding, guard against vicious advice and wrong company, defending the weak.

These moral values are sufficient to guide one's life towards fulfillment both in the present world and beyond. By integrating the teachings of the Ramayana into our educational curriculum, we provide our students with more than just academic knowledge; we furnish them with virtues that foster compassion, responsibility, and moral rectitude. Let us embrace this ancient epic as an enduring guide, inspiring and nurturing the next generation with its invaluable wisdom.

Dr. Pranay Deb, a Post-Doctoral Fellow at ICPR, New Delhi, delivered a lecture on "Basic Values Embodied in Indian Culture and their Relevance to National Reconstruction." He delineated various characteristics of values, elucidating that values constitute core beliefs concerning goodness or righteousness. Additionally, he expounded that values embody qualities, characteristics, or ideas with which individuals strongly identify. Dr. Deb further explained that values serve as standards to orient actions, judgments, goals, and attitudes, exerting influence on social norms, customs, and traditions. Furthermore, he underscored that values delineate notions of worth, distinguishing between what is beneficial and what is detrimental.

Indian culture and tradition epitomize an integral approach to the individual and society, conceptualizing society or the universe as expanded dimensions of humanity. The fundamental values embedded in Indian culture and traditions are intricate and varied, mirroring the nation's ancient and multifaceted history. These values have evolved through diverse philosophical, religious, and social influences spanning thousands of years. Core values in Indian culture and tradition emphasize the interconnectedness of individuals with society, nature, and the divine. Despite embracing change and modernity, India consistently derives strength from its cultural foundations, fostering a distinctive and enduring identity on the global stage.

The periodic lecture on "Basic Values Embodied in Indian Culture and their Relevance to National Reconstruction" successfully laid the foundation for a scholarly exploration of the cultural treasures that can guide India in its journey toward a more inclusive and harmonious future.

Report of the Seminar

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) of Government Degree College Santirbazar convened a one-day Awareness Seminar on "Wetlands and Human Well-Being" on 15th March, 2024 (Friday) in the Smart Class Room of the Academic Building-I. The Seminar was sponsored by Tripura State Pollution Control Board (T.S.P.C.B). The program commenced at 11:00 a.m. with the ceremonial lighting of the auspicious lamp. Distinguished resource persons included Dr. Kuldip Gosai Assistant Professor and HOD of Environmental Science, Iswar Chandra Vidyasagar College, Belonia, South Tripura; Shri Ashis Malakar, Agriculture Officer, CEV, Birchandra Manu, Santirbazar, South Tripura. Other dignitaries were Dr. Sanjoy Das, Principal-in-charge of the college; Sri Dipak Hrish Das, TC Secretary at GDC, Santirbazar; and Shri Sajal Nama, Convener of the Seminar and Coordinator of IQAC.

In his welcoming address, Shri Sajal Nama, the Convener of the seminar and Coordinator of IQAC, Government Degree College Santirbazar, expressed sincere gratitude to the esteemed guests, participants, and students for their presence. He articulated the primary objective of the program is to foster widespread awareness regarding the conservation of wetlands, emphasizing their critical role as integral components of biodiversity and their significance in the water cycle. Shri Nama underscored that wetlands constitute ecosystems that sustain intricate food chains and highlighted their paramount importance for environmental stability. He elucidated that Wetlands serve as crucial habitats for diverse flora and fauna, providing breeding grounds and shelter for numerous species. Moreover, they act as natural filtration systems, purifying water and mitigating the impacts of pollution. Additionally, wetlands contribute to flood control, shoreline stabilization, and climate regulation, thus offering multifaceted ecological benefits. By elucidating the multifaceted ecological significance of wetlands, Shri Nama aimed to instill a sense of urgency and responsibility among attendees towards their preservation. He emphasized the imperative of collective action and informed decision-making to safeguard these invaluable ecosystems for present and future generations.

Mr. Dipak Hrishi Das, Secretary of the Teachers' Council at Government Degree College Santirbazar, underscored the diverse typology of wetlands and their pivotal role in sustaining life-sustaining environments for humanity. He accentuated the necessity of preserving these wetlands to ensure human well-being. Mr. Das emphasized how wetlands provide crucial ecosystem services, including water purification, flood mitigation, and habitat provision for various species, thereby directly impacting human livelihoods and quality of life. His remarks aimed to highlight the interconnectedness between wetland conservation and human welfare, urging concerted efforts towards their protection and sustainable management.

During his presidential address, Dr. Sanjoy Das, Principal-In-Charge of Government Degree College Santirbazar, elucidated the indispensable role of wetlands in our ecosystem and the imperative for their preservation. Dr. Das expounded upon the myriad ecological services provided by wetlands, such as water filtration, flood control, and biodiversity conservation. He articulated the adverse consequences of wetland degradation, emphasizing the need to abstain from activities that pollute these vital habitats. Dr. Das underscored that preserving wetlands is essential for maintaining environmental balance, safeguarding biodiversity, and ensuring sustainable development, thus advocating for concerted efforts to protect and restore these invaluable ecosystems.

Resource person Shri Ashis Malakar, Agriculture Officer from CEV Birchandra Manu, provided a comprehensive overview of the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands, detailing its significance and the various categories under which wetlands are classified. He delved into the Ramsar listed wetland sites in Tripura, as well as other prominent wetland sites across India, emphasizing their ecological importance.

Mr. Malakar elaborated on the diverse benefits that wetlands offer, including medicinal resources, support for livelihoods through fisheries and agriculture, provision of freshwater, flood control by absorbing excess water, and serving as carbon sinks, mitigating climate change impacts. He underscored the critical need to protect and preserve wetlands due to their multifaceted ecological roles and the services they provide to both humans and the environment.

Highlighting the Ramsar Convention's global recognition of the importance of wetlands, Mr. Malakar stressed the necessity for concerted conservation efforts. He emphasized that wetlands are not only vital habitats for numerous species but also essential for maintaining biodiversity and ecological balance. Furthermore, he emphasized that wetlands are crucial for sustaining various ecosystem services upon which human well-being depends. In conclusion, Mr. Malakar's detailed discussion underscored the imperative of safeguarding wetlands, not only for their intrinsic ecological value but also for their crucial contributions to human welfare and environmental sustainability.

Another resource person of the seminar, Dr. Kuldip Gosai, Assistant Professor and HOD, Department of Environmental Science, Iswar Chandra Vidyasagar College, Belonia, South Tripura, elucidated the factors contributing to the decline in wetland areas. He underscored that the reduction in wetland coverage can be attributed to multiple causes, including climate change-induced alterations in precipitation patterns, fluctuations in water levels, and extensive human intervention.

Dr. Gosai emphasized that climate change, characterized by shifts in temperature and rainfall patterns, has profound implications for wetlands worldwide. These alterations disrupt the hydrological balance essential for wetland ecosystems, leading to their degradation and loss. Additionally, he highlighted human activities such as urbanization, agricultural expansion, and industrialization as significant drivers of wetland depletion. These anthropogenic pressures often result in habitat destruction, pollution, and alteration of natural drainage patterns, exacerbating the decline in wetland areas.

Furthermore, Dr. Gosai shed light on the rich biodiversity supported by wetland ecosystems. He discussed the myriad species that depend on wetlands for their survival, including various migratory birds, aquatic plants, amphibians, and fish. These species rely on wetlands for breeding, nesting, feeding, and shelter, making wetlands crucial for maintaining ecological balance and supporting biological diversity. In summation, Dr. Gosai's insights underscored the intricate relationship between human activities, environmental changes, and the decline of wetland areas. His discussion highlighted the urgent need for concerted conservation efforts to mitigate the threats facing wetlands and safeguard the invaluable ecosystems they support.
